Diversified Culture, Shared Future

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom B, International Conference Center)

- Although Asia is a region with diversified civilization and culture, it has inter-connected ideology and value. Since we are experiencing great changes not seen in a century, through dialogues based on the principle of diversity and inter-connectivity, more consensus will be reached and the unity will be strengthened among Asian countries. This will help to build a more prosperous and developed Asia, and moreover, promote the exchange and mutual learning among civilizations.
- How to understand the diversity of civilizations and shared-values in Asia?
- How to promote the ideological integration and cultural inheritance of Asian countries in modern life?
- How to enhance cooperation for mutual achievements, and promote harmonious development for a better future among Asian civilizations?

Intellectual Property in Asia: Trends and Opportunities

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom C, International Conference Center)

- IP filing activity kept growing during the global pandemic. International patent applications via WIPO reached 277,500 in 2021– the highest-ever level.
- Asia manifested its lead as the largest origin of international patent applications, accounting for 54.1% of all applications in 2021. The construction of the IP system in Asia tends to be stable and enterprises are paying more attention to IP, thus forming distinctive features around the world.
- How should we highlight Asian features in the global IP governance system? How will the IP policies vary in major Asian countries and regions? What IP opportunities and risks will enterprises face in the process of coping with new technologies, new business models and new trends? How should we strengthen cooperation and improve efficiency in cross-regional IP protection?

A New Stage of Asia-Pacific Regional Cooperation

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom A, International Conference Center)

- Regional cooperation in East Asia and Asia-Pacific is still accelerating against the backdrop of the pandemic. China-ASEAN (10+1), ASEAN-China, Japan and Korea(10+3), and APEC have played an essential role in promoting practical cooperation among regional countries over the years and face opportunities for further development.
- Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP) entered into force on January 1, 2022. What role will RCEP play in promoting regional cooperation in the Asia-Pacific? How can regional countries make good use of the opportunities brought by RCEP?
- China formally applied to join the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP), showing its determination on further opening-up. Experts suggested exploring pilot practices of CPTPP rules in some of China's free trade zones. What are the prospects for the development of CPTPP and the "Indo-Pacific Economic Framework" newly initiated by the United States? Where is the Asia-Pacific regional cooperation heading for?
- How to further strengthen the multilateralization of the Chiang Mai Initiative, promote monetary cooperation among Asian countries, and enhance financial infrastructure connectivity in Asia?

Promote Energy Integration & Build Green World

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom D, International Conference Center)

April 16, 2022

- To address the challenge of global climate change, more than 130 countries and regions have set carbon neutrality goals; making green, low-carbon and sustainable development an international consensus. Carbon neutrality is a systemic economic and social transformation, during which green and low-carbon energy development serves as the key path. To achieve green and low-carbon energy development, we need to actively promote the synergy and complementarity of various energy sources, accelerate the integrated development of energy with construction, transportation, industry, etc. and develop new & innovative forms of energy digitization. Carrying out international cooperation on integrated energy development is the route we must take to jointly build a green world. So, what is the connotation of energy integration? Where are the main areas of integration? What are the challenges? What new businesses will emerge? How to seize the opportunities for enterprises?

Narrowing the Vaccine Gap

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom B, International Conference Center)

April 16, 2022

- Timely and fair distribution of vaccines to all countries is urgently needed for effective pandemic control. However, there still exists a notable gap between the vaccination rates in high and low-income countries.
- "Vaccine gap" will further broaden the disparity between different economies. If unbalanced vaccination continues, the global economy will face severe loss, and developing economies will pay the most price.
- Can we take effective measures in the various aspects of vaccine development, from research, production, distribution, to intellectual property waiver, to promote vaccine accessibility in developing countries? How to deepen international cooperation to make vaccine a global public good?

Towards Carbon Neutrality: Governments in Action

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom A, International Conference Center)

- Can carbon-neutral efforts carried out by the international community be adequate and timely enough to avert global temperature rise? It takes short-term pains to carry out the reconstruction of industries and energy supplies for carbon neutrality. How to strike a balance between carbon reduction and socioeconomic development?
- How to implement the G20 Sustainable Finance Roadmap? How can developing countries develop "transition finance" and promote the transformation of high-carbon industries to low-carbon ones?
- COP26 in Nov 2021 has reached essential consensus on critical actions to address climate change, including the fundamental norms related to carbon markets. To date, more than 20 carbon emission trading systems (ETS) have been established globally. How do the ETSs produce the 'proper' price signal? How to reduce carbon emission more efficiently via global carbon markets?

New Vision and New Path for Sustainable Development in the South China Sea

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom B, International Conference Center)

- The South China Sea is a repository of natural resources and the common homeland for China and neighboring countries. In recent years, the over-exploitation of fishery resources, the degradation of biodiversity, and the pollution of the ecological environment have brought enormous pressure to the sustainable development of the sea. It is hence urgent to conduct effective regional marine environmental governance and cooperation. However, the uncertainty caused by factors such as maritime disputes and geopolitical conflicts cannot be ignored. This year marks the 20th anniversary of the signing of the "Declaration on the Conduct of Parties in the South China Sea (DOC)". China and relevant ASEAN countries are expected to move towards each other and work together to accelerate the implementation of maritime pragmatic cooperation under the framework of the DOC, and to reach an effective and substantive "Code of Conduct in the South China Sea (COC)" as soon as possible. These efforts shall lead to building the South China Sea into a sea of peace, cooperation and greenness.

The Belt and Road: A New Practice of Cooperative Development

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom A, International Conference Center)

- The "Belt and Road" initiative has achieved tangible results in many fields such as infrastructure construction and trade cooperation, and has become a successful practice of cooperative development among the co-building countries.
- Despite the pandemic, the BRI interconnection projects continue to obtain new progress, laying a sound foundation for economic recovery in the countries concerned. However, the debt sustainability of developing countries remains pressing. How to enhance the G20 "Common Framework for Debt Treatment beyond the DSSI (Common Framework)" and drive new capital into the countries along the "Belt and Road"?
- To build a "green silk road" is of particular significance for the world's green recovery post-pandemic. How to better integrate the "Belt and Road" cooperation with the transformation and upgrading of the economic structure of co-building countries, so as to create a green, low-carbon, and sustainable path to common development?

China's Financial Market Opening-up

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom B, International Conference Center)

- In 2021, China keeps opening up its financial and capital market against the backdrop of de-globalization. Chinese stocks and bonds have been continuously added into international indexes. Wholly foreign-owned securities companies, fund management companies and joint venture financial institutions have become new members of China's capital market. Chinese institutional investors have also stepped up their overseas investment. The Beijing Stock Exchange provides more investment opportunities for various market players. "Cross Border Financial Link" further promotes connections between markets at home and abroad.
- During the 14th Five Year Plan period, how will China further open up its financial system, especially in the capital account and Fintech to better contribute to China's comprehensive opening-up? Digital Economy for Social Good

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom D, International Conference Center)

- Major economies, including the EU, US, and China, are strengthening their regulation on the digital economy. As an instance, China officially applied to join the Digital Economy Partnership Agreement (DEPA) late last year. There is no doubt that introducing reasonable rules to create a healthy and fair environment for the digital economy is a momentous task for all countries.
- In terms of the digital economy regulations, various governments adopt different philosophies. How to harmonize the rules worldwide to better address the issue such as data ownership and data cross-border flows to benefit the whole society?
- What kind of regulation best benefit the market environment? How to boost the development of the digital economy while preventing monopoly?
- How to eliminate the "digital divide", especially for developing countries?

Bridge the Great Divergence

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom A, International Conference Center)

- The pandemic has intensified the existing trend of global divergence, a rising backlash against economic globalization with growing unilateralism and protectionism. Much resistance is present on the way towards healthy and balanced economic globalization.
- Tensions in international relations, especially among major powers, are escalating, and ideological confrontation, intensifying. Geopolitical hot issue such as Ukraine is heating up sharply. How to bridge the great divergence around the globe and enhance international cooperation?
- Human society now faces many challenges, such as developmental and digital gaps. How to improve global governance to better bridge such gaps for common development?

Global Inflation, Interest Rate Hikes and Economic Stability

(Hesheng Ballroom, Level 1, Dongyu Island Hotel)

- In 2021, with soaring prices of commodities, food and housing, inflation risks are threatening global economic and financial stability. Commodity prices further fluctuated due to the Ukraine crisis. Developed countries such as the UK and Canada and some emerging economies are already on track to raise interest rates. Following tapering measures, the Federal Reserve announced interest rate hikes in March.

- Are the factors triggering this round of inflation temporary or structural? Will the interest rate increases burst the bubbles in global financial assets including digital assets? How will emerging economies be affected? How should the world respond to the challenges of inflation, normalize post-pandemic policies, and maintain global macroeconomic stability?

Dialogue of Religious Leaders: Civilizations Flourishing through Exchanges and Communication

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom B, International Conference Center)

- All religions and civilizations in the world have evolved through constant assimilation of diverse cultures, and can only thrive through communication and convergence. To boost peaceful coexistence among varied religions and civilizations, one must promote exchanges, dialogue, inclusiveness and mutual learning.
- The experience of China and the international community shows the only solution to defeating the pandemic is to strengthen confidence and work together in times of difficulty. Healing the wounds caused by COVID-19 requires the concerted efforts of all human communities, including religions. Peaceful co-existence among religions and civilizations helps human societies tackle major challenges together.
- This dialogue will invite religious leaders and cultural elites from home and abroad to explore the topics of communication, mutual learning and peaceful coexistence of religions and civilizations, etc.

The Distance between Metaverse and Us

(Dong Yu Grand Ballroom D, International Conference Center)

- Metaverse is a new type of Internet application that integrates multiple new technologies and a social form that merges the virtual with reality. It will reshape the traditional interaction between the real and the virtual world, offering massive opportunities for scenario transformation in daily life, including social activities, work, and entertainment. Metaverse is considered to be the next global trend in science and technology.
- On the whole, the Metaverse industry and related market remain in their early stage at present. What breakthroughs can be achieved in fundamental information technologies, such as mobile communication, big data and artificial intelligence? How to develop more application scenarios?
- Considering the tremendous changes that Metaverse may bring to human society, how to establish the forward-looking governance of Metaverse and reduce potential risks in advance by expanding the regulation of the Internet and artificial intelligence?
